Andrew Lang

Classification of Poetry: Poetry where sentiments

Aristotle:

Epic.

Dramatic.

Lyric.

Elegiac.

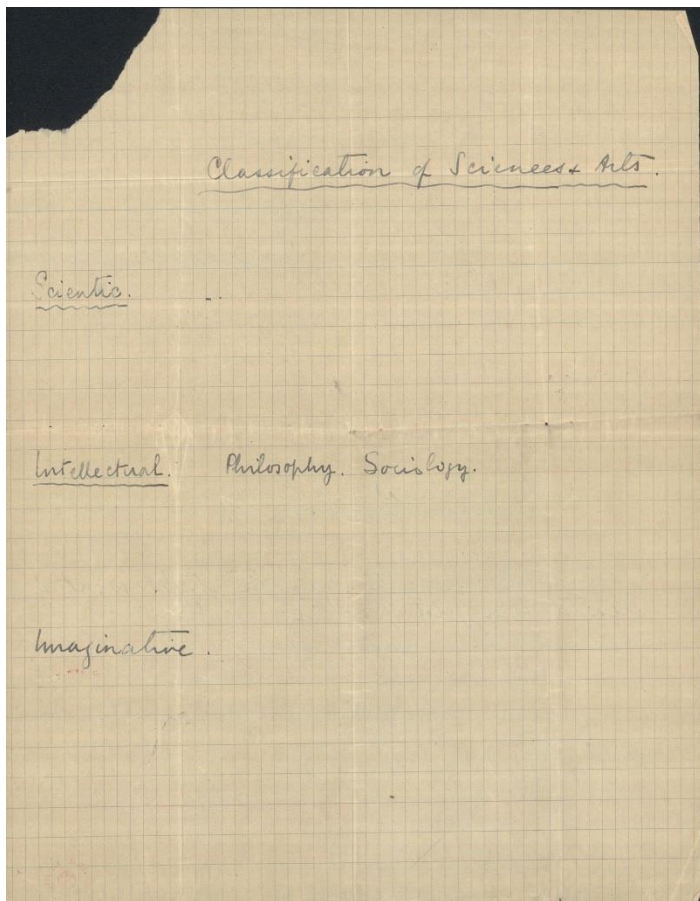

Aristotle:

Poetry of external action - Epic and Dramatic.

Poetry of internal action - Lyric and elegiac.

In the Epic and in the Dramatic styles what is created is a plot of action; in the other two styles what is created is the interpretation of the emotion or of the sentiment.

What is the difference between the Epic and the Dramatic Styles? Simple it is and easily perceived. In the Epic style the author speaks; in the Dramatic his dramatis personae. No other difference at all.
